Editorial Review

Review

"There were tips on what schools looked for as well as actual essays from students accepted into their respective programs. After reading those essays and understanding what was needed to get into school, I was pumped! I had to be creative, add a lot more color, and show the admissions committee who Renee really was and what she was all about. It only took a few hours to kick out the initial draft. And a couple of weeks in total to complete my essays after I had gotten started." -- Renee, satisfied reader

"The personal statement is the most misunderstood portion of the medical application. Students approach it with fear, and never feel they have tackled it from the proper angle, which is a mistake. Each student should look upon it as an opportunity to humanize their otherwise academic-emphasized application folder."
